The woman's society of Central gers.

Though the majority of girls here are occupied in some way, there are still a goodly number so situated financially that they need not work, them to rise before 9 or 10 o'clock. Alex. Lindsay, on the charge of at-After completing a somewhat lengthy toilet they take a dainty bit of breakfast and then proceed to devote themselves to some selfgratifying pleasure. No doubt some of these have talents that might be developed, and they could, if it pleased them, go into the settlement work. The settlements are no doubt open to those who are interested in that sort of work; and it might be well if interest along these lines could be aroused in the idle young girls. But up to this time tation to attend this social is extend- much real work. Women who have lived here for many years say that knows nothing of the cold climate, Miss Florence Hoffman is enter that answer to the question seems

There are many things that might be done in the home in the early Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Withington and morning if the girls would be willing W. R. Castle place on Tantalus, have the fresh morning air. The majority of a joint concert given by Mrs. Ar. Perhaps if some of cal buying on her shoulders she would not only reduce the expense in the home, but would no doubt feel that Mr. and Mrs. H. Gooding Field have she was accomplishing something; the amount saved by careful buying would of furnish a goodly allowance for the girl herself.

> At the present time one of the fads that exist among this class of girls is domestic science. They attend the classes when nothing else comes in tne way, and perhaps do very well, young women do the practical cooking themselves? In one of the domestic science classes in California the part of the work demanded by the teacher is that the girls go into homes and prepare and serve a meal. This does not mean that the girls go into these homes as servants, and they are never treated as such. If, however, such a thing were suggested, the class, in a body, would rise up in

The brides-to-be, of course, are busy sewing. Some at home, others belong to little sewing circles, the members of which are all coming brides. Other young women who have no particular occupation might organize similar clubs, despite the fact that they are not all making trousseaux. These girls might make things for their "dower boxes." Many bashful maidens hesitate before starting these, because—well, because they are not sure that they will ever need them. But !! whether or not a young woman experts to marry, she is almost sure to need linens and towels some day. These things come in very handy if one intends to travel or ever become a member of a college sorority. The girls who are making these dower boxes spend their spare moments embroidering towels, initialing linen or making fancy sofa pillows.

Embroidering, tennis, or most any such occupation is far more profitable than the reading of trashy novels and the eating of chocolates. So many of Nell Brinkley's dainty Bettys are of this type and are most fascinating in print, but few such girls are appreciated when viewed in real life.

JACKIES' NECKERCHIEF.

It is not generally known that the bluejacket's black neckerchief, a survival of the service mourning for Nelson, is the best British silk obtainable and the admiralty is a very fastidious customer. Two to each man are issued annually, and many thousands of these discarded scarfs have been subsequently worn by Jack's femininity. A pair of them make an excellent

Charles K. Notley, who has been standard-bearer of the Home Rule party for Delegate to Congress for many years, was again honored for the same position at the convention of the Home Rulers held last night in Notley Hall.

Notley is now ready to make his political tour of the Islands, and, according to those who arrived from Kona, Hawaii, It is expected that he will receive better support there this time than he did two years ago.

VENERABLE SWINDLER FIGHTS TO DODGE JAIL

J. M. Mokuula, the elderly Hawaiian who was arrested some time ago at the behest of Attorney General tempting to obtain money from Lindsay by presenting a bogus church petition on August 8, and who was sentenced to four months' imprisonment with costs, has appealed his case from the district to the circuit court. Mokuula, at the time of his hearing, gave the unusual defense that he had presented the fraudulent petition to the attorney general merely to see if the latter would "bite," claiming he expected by this anethod to find out whether the official was his friend. He admitted the petition was fake, but said he intended giving the money back if Lindsay offered it. Instead of offering the coin, however, Lindsay detained Mokuula and called the police. He knew the man as an old offender, whom he had had occasion to sentence while he (Lindsay) sat on the bench some years
